

Introduction to Bowtie Analysis Online Training

COURSE DESCRIPTION

R4Risk's Introduction to Bowtie Analysis online live training (i.e. not pre-recorded) covers the foundations into risk analysis using the bowtie technique. The training encompasses the bowtie methodology, with practical experience in applying the technique through a staged work example. The course will be delivered across two half-day sessions.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

The Introduction to Bowtie Analysis is designed for those who are new to the bowtie technique. They may include managers, operators, HSE advisors, graduate engineers.

COURSE CONTENT

The Introduction to Bowtie Analysis training course is split into two parts:

- Part 1: Bowtie Analysis theory
- Part 2: Exploring how to build an example Bowtie.

The course will cover a range of essential topics, including:

- Introduction to risk assessment techniques
- Bowtie methodology - hazards, causes, safeguards and impacts
- Practical methods for when to apply bowties
- Advantages / disadvantages of using bowties
- How to use bowties in risk communication.

Participants will work through a step-by-step example showing how a bowtie is developed from hazard identification to final risk ratings.
